Lumumba Thwarted In Attempt To Take Over Radio Station

Show Of Guns By U.N. Forces Changes Mind

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — A show of United Nations machine guns Sunday thwarted an attempt by Patrice Lumumba to seize the Leopoldville radio.

Blue-helmeted Ghana troops took positions in foxholes dug around the radio station building as Lumumba, the deposed Congolese premier, led about 20 armed soldiers toward it.

"I called you here to help," Lumumba shouted to Ghana Lt. George Short, an Englishman.

"I will fire if you don't leave," Short replied calmly.

"Excellency, don't risk your life," screamed Serge Michel, Lumumba's press advisor who was sent to the Congo by the Algerian National Liberation Front.

As Lumumba turned around, half a dozen bewildered Congolese soldiers handed their rifles to grinning Ghanians.

Their arms were returned later and sullen-faced, they drove off in a truck, after staring at the Ghanians for about half an hour.

General Watches Incident

Gen. Victor Lundula, the ex-sergeant who is supposed to command "the Congolese national army," watched the incident, biting his lips. Later he drove off in an official car flying the blue Congo standard.

One of Lumumba's prime points of ire at the United Nations has been the U.N. seizure of Leopoldville's radio station. He urgently wants it back so he can talk to the Congolese people and exercise his persuasive brand of oratory.

For two days Lumumba has been threatening to seize control of the station closed by the United Nations last Tuesday to prevent inflammatory statements.

The radio station takeover attempt resembled a Sunday picnic, rather than a potentially explosive incident. Scores of newsmen and by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, anti-Europeans stood on the broad Boulevard Albert to watch the Laotian governments who now Ghanians deploy. Several European women paraded in tight slacks in front of the British-made Bren machine guns and the corridor of troops.

"You are laughing now," shouted a civilian Congolese official to newsmen. "But one day we will kill you all with our bare hands."

True Team In Katanga

Meanwhile, a U.N. military team moved out to enforce a truce in the civil war in the Kasai-Katanga area.

The four-officer team, commanded by Col. S. M. Mollersward of Sweden, left in a United Nations plane to set up headquarters in Elisabethville, Katanga's capital.

While the United Nations went ahead with action to stop further for the Laotian army is scattered bloodshed in the Congo, the Lumumba government announced, kingdom, and monsoon rains soon "There has been no cease-fire in Kasai or in Katanga."

In Elisabethville, however, Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga is known to have forces loyal to him at Pak and Albert Kalonji, head of the same 50 miles from Vientiane.

Marshall Stamp

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany is going to commemorate the memory of the late American general and statesman George C. Marshall with a special 10-cent postal stamp. The Postal Ministry said the stamp, bearing a head of Marshall, will be issued on the first anniversary of the general's death, Oct. 16.

Nixon Campaign Gets Off Seven Seized Ground At Airport Today On Moonshine Charges In Md.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon's appearance before the election campaign for the presidency will get off the ground officially Monday — and Nixon-Lodge girls in red, white and blue uniforms will turn out in tribute to their candidate.

Before Nixon takes off by jet plane from Baltimore's Friendship Airport, his fellow Republicans, headed by President Eisenhower, will join in noisy rally to cheer him on his way.

Extraoomp is going into the sendoff because a knee infection kept the presidential nominee in Walter Reed Hospital and off the campaign trail for 11 days.

He figures to make up lost time with a whirlwind, 9,000-mile sweep through 14 states in the first phase of his vote drive.

Eisenhower is to come to Friendship from his farm home at Gettysburg, Pa., and will share the speaking spotlight with Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge, the vice presidential candidate. It may be

Fiery Auto Crash Claims Four Lives

DETROIT (UPI) — Four persons, including two teen-aged girls, were killed early Sunday when a farewell date with a departing serviceman ended in a fiery auto crash on the Detroit-to-Willow Run airport expressway.

The young serviceman, who was driving one of the two cars involved in the collision, lived. His date and another couple in the new convertible with him were killed.

The collision occurred, police said, when a car driven by one of the victims, James F. Blevins, 22, of Romulus ran a stop sign at an intersection and drove into the path of the other car, which was traveling on the expressway. Blevins was alone in his car.

Killed in the other car were Sharon A. Zillman, Detroit, and Joanne C. Kroll, Allen Park, both 19, and Thomas E. Taylor, 25, Dearborn.

The serviceman, William Lynch, 21, Detroit, was hospitalized in serious condition with head injuries.

Florida

since the storms of the '20s and '30s.

Preliminary reports indicated the keys suffered most. Officials at Marathon, 35 miles northeast of Key West, said 80 per cent of the buildings suffered major damage. Not one escaped unscathed.

"I prayed to God," said Mrs. David Elwood of Marathon. "Do you know what it is to stand on a kitchen table in the middle of swirling waters with a child in your arms? I held onto nothing but a ceiling beam, praying to God it wouldn't fall."

But despite the onslaught in the keys only one confirmed death was reported at Marathon. Some 20 persons were given emergency treatment at Marathon, most of them suffering cuts from flying glass and stones.

Other storm-connected deaths were reported from battered Fort Myers on the Gulf Coast, where a truck cab and its driver were blown off a bridge; from Homestead, just south of Miami, where a driver lost control of his car hit a tree; and from Winter Haven in central Florida, where a youth was electrocuted while trying to save a television aerial from the storm's grasp.

Donna, with hurricane force winds—74 miles an hour—swirling outward 75 miles or more in all directions, first touched Florida near Marathon and followed a giant semicircle through the long peninsula.

It hit the mainland in isolated Everglades National Park, home of alligators and mangrove swamps; churned up the Gulf Coast through Fort Myers, then headed inland on a northerly course.

Donna passed through Wauchula, east of Sarasota; Lakeland, east of Tampa; veered northeast past Orlando and blew out to sea at Flagler Beach, midway between Daytona Beach and St. Augustine.

TSHOME WITH NEWSMEN—Premier Moise Tshombe of the Congo secessionist province of Katanga was all smiles as he met with newsmen outside his residence in Elisabethville, Katanga, recently. Church Leaders Oppose Making Religion Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — One hundred of the Greek Orthodox dried Protestant, Jewish and Catholic Church: Richard Cardinal Cushing leaders urged their religious organizations Sunday to oppose Boston.

Also, Reinhold Niebuhr of Union Theological Seminary, New York; Rabbi William F. Rosenbloom, former president of the Synagogue Council of America; Rabbi Maurice Mauzy, 29 Roman Catholics, one rice N. Elseneir, president of Greek Orthodox and 15 Jews — called their statement "an attempt to extract higher ethic regarding religion and politics that would be applicable to the practical considerations of the current presidential campaign."

A Protestant group, led by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, issued a statement last week which said a Roman Catholic president would be "under extreme pressure by the hierarchy of his Church." However, Dr. Peale, a supporter of Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon, later said public agitation of religion as an issue in the campaign would be "in the long run harmful to our country."

Nixon is a Quaker. His opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, is a Roman Catholic.

Maryland Rain Not Connected With Hurricane

By The Associated Press

Showers fell across most of Maryland Sunday but the weatherman said Hurricane Donna had nothing to do with it.

The heaviest rain was in the northern and western parts of the state. More than three-quarters of an inch fell in the Baltimore area.

Concerning Donna, off the Carolina coast, the U. S. Weather Bureau at Friendship International Airport said:

"Maryland should be out of danger if the hurricane continues on its present course, but hurricanes are erratic. It's too far away now to have any effect here."

The Baltimore Regional Chapter of the Red Cross placed its disaster workers on a stand-by basis in case they have to be sent into the South in the wake of the hurricane.

Marine Is Fined For Role In Riots

BERLIN, Md. (AP)—A young Baltimore Marine has paid a $300 fine on disorderly conduct charges in connection with the Labor Day weekend teen-age riots at Ocean City.

Pfc. Laren Baker was fined $550 Saturday by Magistrate H. Roy Berger, but $250 of the fine was suspended in consideration of his "excellent record" during 19 months in the Marines.

His mother shouted and sobbed and was taken from the courtroom after the penalty was announced, and Baker shouted he'd spend 10 years in prison rather than have anything happen to her.

Magistrate Berger found Baker guilty of resisting an officer and disorderly conduct. Hundreds of youths rioted early Labor Day after Ocean City police arrested Baker in the Ocean Casino on the boardwalk. There was a second disturbance later.

Germany Takes Final Olympic Games Event

Closing Ceremonies Witnessed By 90,000

ROME (AP)—The 1960 Olympic Games, the world's greatest modern sports festival, closed Sunday with a traditional, colorful ceremony after 18 days of record-breaking events.

The great athletic show, dominated by Soviet athletes, formally came to an end as the brilliant sun went down behind the western hills and dusk settled on magnificent Olympic Stadium. The games began in the same vast stadium on Aug. 25.

A near-capacity crowd of 90,000 witnessed the impressive ceremonies.

International Olympic Committee President Avery Brundage of Chicago, 72, solemnly pronounced the games closed in Italian. Brundage, inflexible advocate of pure amateurism, had scored his own Roman victory just before the games started by being unanimously elected IOC president.

As many eyes glistened in an Auld Lang Syne spirit, the Olympic flame which burned continuously in a tripod sturnus slowly died away.

Germany Cops Final

It was nearly nightfall when the final Olympic event, the equestrian jumping grand prix, was won by Germany. The first gold medal of the games had been taken by Italy on Aug. 26.

The United States won the silver medal in the equestrian jumping Sunday with Italy third. The U.S. team of George Morris of New Canaan, Conn., Frank Chapot of Wallpack, N.J., and Bill Steinhaus of Westport, Conn., had a team total of 66 penalty points.

The winning Germans had 46½, the Italians 80½.

As for the overall Olympic competition, the Russians again emerged the unofficial champions, just as they did in the 1956 games at Melbourne. In the two-country battle for top laurels, Russia took 43 gold medals and scored 80½ points, against the United States' 34 first-place medals and 56½ points. At Melbourne, Russia won 37 gold medals and scored 722 points. America came up with 32 gold medals and 593 points.

However, in the games kingpin sport, track and field, Uncle Sam grabbed 12 gold medals against 11 for Russia.

Wilma Stands Out

The United States took nine men's gold medals and three women's firsts as Wilma Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., became the only double-winner in track and field and also led America's girl 400-meter relay team to a world record of 44.4. Russia had six women's gold medals, five men's.

The United States also dominated the swimming competition, capturing 11 of 19 possible gold medals to the dismay of the confident Australians.

In basketball, America again was in a class by itself, easily sweeping to a fifth consecutive Olympic triumph, with the Russians finishing second.

Cagers Make Sweep

The Yanks coasted to a 90-63 win over Brazil in the basketball finale Saturday night. It was the fifth clean sweep for the U.S. since basketball was added to the Olympic program in 1936. The Americans have won 38 games without a defeat, six in the inaugural tourney and eight in each of the succeeding four.

Baron Urges Reforms In Sales Tax

Sees Reforms As Aid To Industry

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI)—Democratic gubernatorial nominee W. W. Barron Sunday said he favored reforming the state's gross sales tax to ease burdens on small industries and attract new ones to areas of chronic unemployment.

Barron told the annual meeting of the West Virginia League of Municipalities that he favored stepping up the property equalization and revaluation program to provide additional revenues for schools and cities.

"Our objectives in modernizing West Virginia's tax structure are two-fold to develop a fair and equitable tax structure which will provide us with the public revenues we need, while at the same time creating a climate conducive to industrial development," Barron said.

Barron said he would initiate a series of conferences with leaders of business and industry in West Virginia to discuss proposed changes in the Mountain State's tax structure, if elected in November.

"With final recommendations of the tax Study Commission as a guide, I will sit down with these leaders and do everything within my power to get them to agree on a tax program to submit to the state legislature, Barron said.

The Women's Golf Association of the Cumberland Country Club will hold a relay tournament Tuesday.

Summary of the CCC-Beaver Creek match:

Dick Buskey and Steve Johnson, Cumberland, 1½; Dick Muller and J. Dunn, 1½; O'Gorman and Lee, 1½.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 16 and have a terrible problem—clammy hands. When I am out with a fellow my palms are always moist with perspiration. I try to wear gloves but during the summer it's not convenient.

When I'm in a movie with a fellow and he wants to hold hands I am very embarrassed. Can you suggest a solution?—DAMPENED SPIRITS

DEAR DAMP: The more you think about your clammy hands the clammy they will be. Most palms are usually a manifestation of nervousness.

Keep several handkerchiefs in your purse and carry one when you feel ill at ease. If a fellow wants to hold your hand, don't be concerned. His hands are probably clammy than yours.

DEAR ANN: My father owns a large business which was started by my grandfather. I entered the firm when I graduated from college last year. I like the business and could do well at it, but my old man drives me nuts. He's an aggressive, high-powered guy and thinks I ought to be just like him.

I've thought of just walking out but it would be foolish. There's a beautiful living here, and I'm the sole heir. I feel that the older employees resent me because my dad is pushing me too fast.

I'm engaged to a lovely girl who is urging me to leave. She says it's not worth it. She has great confidence in my ability and says

DEAR SALLY: All the things you father mentioned are symptoms of insecurity. Add these tell-tale habits to your own concern that "he drinks a little too much" and you have a picture that could stand a second (and third) look before considering marriage.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FINANCIALLY EMBARRASSED: When THEY needed money they were blunt. Don't be foolish. There's no reason to make them a gift of the loan.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents coin and a large, self-addressed stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

The Pauling Case: Question Of Purpose

The Pauling case appears destined, sooner or later, to wind up before the United States Supreme Court, as such irresistible-force-immovable-object riddles usually do these days. Linus C. Pauling, Nobel Prize-winning physicist and professor at California Institute of Technology, insists that he will not disclose to a Senate subcommittee the names of colleagues who assisted him in petitioning the United Nations against testing of nuclear weapons. The subcommittee equally firmly has ordered Pauling to produce the names Thursday or be charged with contempt of Congress.

Of the various postwar conflicts between individual rights and Congressional prerogatives in investigations, the Pauling controversy appears to come most appropriately under the heading, "conscience case." The Senate Internal Security subcommittee is looking into the collection by Pauling and others of more than 11,000 signatures of scientists in 49 nations on petitions asking the end of nuclear weapons tests. The petitions were presented to the United Nations in 1958. Pauling on June 21 refused to supply the investigating group the names of scientists who helped him collect signatures.

The U.S. Court of Appeals on September 6 unanimously refused Pauling's request for a stay of the subcommittee hearing. Pauling's attorney had contended that the order to bring the names to the subcommittee deprived him of freedoms of conscience, speech, press and assembly under the First Amendment. It was also argued that the order violated the Fourth Amendment guarantee against illegal searches and seizures.

The Supreme Court in the Watkins decision of June 17, 1957 noted that "there is no Congressional power to expose for the sake of exposure." A labor organizer was excused on the ground of the First Amendment of a contempt charge arising from refusal to identify former associates he knew to be Communists. At issue in the present controversy, it would thus appear, is whether the subcommittee has a legislative purpose in demanding the names from Pauling.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Rules Of Evidence

Way back in 1958, I got into an argument with a garage over a car and the argument resulted in a lawsuit which is still pending. The whole business is no great shakes one way or the other, but the due process of the law is fascinating and I watch it with the keenest interest, although not with anxiety.

First of all, a small matter of this sort should not take so long. Suppose it were vital to the persons concerned. Apparently the course of justice is so slow that witnesses die, complainants forget what they are complaining about, the defendants go out of business and one actually may not know whom he is suing. In fact, in this case, the garage about which I complain is no more. Even the building does not stand. The former owners are remote persons who own many properties under varying corporate names and a customer is dealing with changeable hired hands who disappear from the scene or perhaps even from this Earth.

Secondly, I find the due process beyond belief stupid. No reporter could ever get at the facts of a situation if he had to ask questions such as lawyers do under the rules of evidence. No one really wants to know the truth which may be a product of conversations which lawyers call hearsay. They want descriptions of actions taken. "Did you talk to so-and-so on the telephone?" "Yes!" But try to tell him the details of the discussion as you recall them and he objects. He wants you to answer only as he wants you to answer, which is nonsense.

I have just been reading an examination before trial which was a waste of time and money because in this case it ended in a brawl. The lawyer's questions were aimed at particularities which may be helpful to his side but which actually could not be told truthfully according to the rules of evidence. These questions were aimed at suppressing the essential data and I am told that a judge might uphold the elimination of what a witness regards as essential data.

Relevance is a matter of knowledge. A witness may know what is relevant because he is part of the situation. However, a lawyer's attitude toward relevance has become so narrowed that it is no wonder that Perry Mason always licks the prosecuting attorney by making relevant matter admissible despite the rules of evidence.

Congressional committees, which are not bound by the rules of evidence, get at the truth by other methods. The word, McCarthyism, has taken on the meaning of inquisition. Joe McCarthy is pictured as a sort of Torquemada who squeezed the facts out of a witness by sheer brutality. Many persons would say that while they were favorably disposed toward ridding the country of Communists, which was McCarthy's objective, they opposed and even despised his methods.

By the rules of evidence, most of the questions that are asked by Congressional Committees are irrelevant although there is no way of establishing a conspiracy except by building brick on brick until one of the conspirators either confesses or leads to the truth. A lawyer who depends upon the suppression of the truth to win his case may serve his client but he does not serve justice which is what the courts exist for.

My own experience with this thing does not matter and I am not pleading a case. I am pleading for speedy procedures, for eliminating pettigiving and time-wasting and the pushing aside of the ritual of the rules of evidence so that the facts of a case may be discovered or uncovered without delay. If the wheels of justice must grind slowly, let them grind for the purpose of making data available, not for suppressing data.

Politicians have held up the increase in the number of judges despite the delay in the hearing of cases both in State and Federal courts. The ensuing delays only add to the cost of litigation. But in some matters, where there is no meeting of the minds and where honesty on both sides should lead to a swift adjustment, delay works injustice usually for the side that can least afford it.

When justice becomes too expensive a commodity, other ways have to be found to settle grievances. One way is by the employment of the wise man — a non-legal adjudicator.

Polls And The Political Portents In Ohio

By Joseph Alsop

CLEVELAND

Here in northeastern Ohio, the portents are favorable to Sen. John F. Kennedy. If not misleading, moreover, these Ohio portents have national meanings; for there is no state in the Union that is nearer to being nationally indicative.

On one point, the portents leave no room for doubt. In Ohio, as of today, Sen. Kennedy is running several miles ahead of Adlai Stevenson, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon is running several miles behind President Eisenhower.

But in Ohio in 1956, Eisenhower got no less than 2,262,000 votes against 1,439,000 for Stevenson. The Eisenhower lead, in other words, was really immense. Thus Kennedy is not assured of victory because he is far ahead of the previous Democratic nominees, and Nixon is not doomed to defeat because he commands so much less support than the President.

To learn more, it is needful to analyze the evidence collected here by a doorbell-ringing team composed of Ray Dorsey and Bill Williams, of "The Cleveland Plain Dealer," and this reporter. As we took large samples, polling over 300 people in all, we had no doubt that our results gave a correct picture of the neighborhoods polled. But did these neighborhoods correctly represent Ohio as a whole, or only this northeastern corner?

To begin with our first results, we found a massive political turnover in the two farm townships of Dorset and Denmark, in Ashtabula County. The same people who had given President Eisenhower a two-and-a-half to one majority in 1956, now gave a modest majority to Sen. Kennedy. But like all the northeastern Ohio farm area except the lake front, these townships are economically depressed.

Hard times for the dairy farmers and heavy industrial layoffs among the half-farmers half-factory workers put the so-called religious issue in the shade in Denmark and Dorset. So much discontent and such forgetfulness of the religious issue are not likely to be found in the richer Ohio farm regions, especially in the south. Some drop in Ohio's traditional Republican farm vote must be expected, but not such a violent turnover as we found in Ashtabula County.

In Cleveland, too, there were few signs that the religious issue was having much influence; and there were important signs of Democratic revival in the three Cleveland precincts we visited. Their turnover, from close to two to one for Eisenhower to more than six to five for Kennedy, seemed to forecast an old-style Democratic majority in Cuyahoga County. But Cleveland may also be a special case, since the economic slowdown has been especially troublesome here.

Finally, in three precincts in Akron, we found a sharp ferment of religious prejudice. The ferment did not prevent a considerable fall off of the Republican votes since 1956, but it was strong enough to give Nixon a hairline majority in our Akron sample. Its importance may be gauged by the fact that about a quarter of Nixon's total support was owed to checks that have been made in Toledo and Springfield suggest that the kind of ferment found in Akron is also strong in these cities, and quite probably throughout western Ohio. Add that even in Cleveland, Kennedy got a few votes less than Gov. Mike DiSalle's 1958 total; and that Kennedy ran rather far behind DiSalle in Akron.

You then get a picture of a much closer race than might be suggested by our local figures. With a state-wide majority just above 450,000 votes, DiSalle got 56.7 per cent of the Ohio vote in 1958. On the face of our figures, Kennedy, running behind DiSalle in the urban centers, may have a present majority of 150,000. This would give him a precariously narrow percentage lead. Furthermore, even this lead may be diminished still further, if the kind of ferment we found in Akron is extra-strong elsewhere.

In addition, very few of the people we polled, except the religiously influenced voters, had as yet developed strong feelings about the election. Whether they chose Kennedy or Nixon, most of them did not appear to be passionately attached to the candidate of their choice. All of this large central group seemed capable of changing sides, in fact, because of the Kennedy-Nixon television debates or some other important development of the campaign.

In Ohio, to sum up, Nixon has his work cut out for him, but so does Kennedy. And if Kennedy has a slight lead, which seems likely, it is certainly not the sort of lead he can depend on.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

STRONTIUM-90 — Experiments are being conducted in an unobtrusive laboratory outside Washington which may well hold the answers as to whether radioactive fallout picked up by food can be successfully controlled in the human diet.

Laboratories in the U. S. and abroad have worked out a system whereby 90 per cent of the radioactive strontium can be removed from milk before it is consumed. What Beltsville is trying to do is to work out a fool-proof simple, inexpensive method of applying the laboratory finds to milk produced in great volume.

Success will mean a major breakthrough for science in the greatest milk-consuming country of the world.

milk-drinking humans. It accounts for fully one-third of the annual intake by humans of radioactivity from all food sources. Because of its affinity for bone, it is suspected of being a major cause of bone cancer in humans.

Hormones Can Control Adrenal Insufficiency

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The adrenals are indispensable to life. These glands supply the hormones that keep the mind alert and help the body combat disease and other forms of stress. In addition, they control the distribution and excretion of salt and water, and play an important role in maintaining normal blood pressure.

The glands are flattened, cap-like structures that cover the upper part of each kidney. They weigh approximately 1/5 of an ounce, and are slightly larger than half a dried apricot. Each organ consists of an outer layer of cells (the medulla) and a central core (the cortex).

Adrenal insufficiency occurs when the central part is invaded by tuberculosis or is destroyed by stress situation like severe illness earlier in life. Signs of insufficiency seldom develop under control. The best preventive is to maintain normal weight.

BALDNESS

H. L. S. writes: Recently a newscaster mentioned that bald men can regain hair by taking about $150 worth of cortisone a month. I wouldn't mind spending this much money to get back my hair. Do you have any information on this discovery?

REPLY

Save your money for a wig. Cortisone may cause hair to regrow but baldness returns as soon as the drug is stopped. Meanwhile, there may be other side effects of the drug that would make its use undesirable.

For example, large doses of cortisone rounds out the face and your new look might be described as "growing hair on the moon."

3 Youths Flee Garrett Jail

Bar Sawed From Cellar Window

Three young prisoners sawed their way to freedom from the Garrett County Jail at Oakland yesterday morning and a full-scale search failed to turn up a lead to their whereabouts.

Maryland State Police joined forces with Sheriff

James Frantz and his deputies to look for Walter Lee Davis, 19, of Fairmont, W. Va., who had been awaiting trial on breaking and entering and larceny charges; Stanley Tasker, 16, of Kitzmiller, who was facing indictment by the grand jury for breaking and entering and auto theft; and Julius Ervin Jr., 20, Mt. Lake Park, who also was awaiting action of the grand jury on several forgery counts.

They are not believed to be armed.

Sheriff Frantz discovered their absence from their cells during his morning check about 9 o'clock. Authorities surmise they escaped sometime about 4 o'clock, as fellow prisoners said they were in their cells around 2 a. m.

Separate From Others

The sheriff's office said the three young prisoners had been placed in cells on the opposite side of the cellblock from eight others who are being held in the Oakland jail. This was done to avoid overcrowding, authorities said, and not for any security reasons.

Deputies states the cells in which the three young men were placed during the night were not locked, although the "bull pen" area into which the felons face was locked.

The youths apparently tore out toilet fixtures in one of the first floor cells and made their way through the hole in the floor into the basement of the building.

There, with the aid of a hacksaw blade, the three sawed through one bar on a basement window overlooking an alley which runs alongside the Garrett County Court House. The prisoners, described as being of medium build, then slipped through a space 6½ inches wide to freedom.

May Have Hitched Ride

The Garrett County sheriff theorized the three were able to hitch a ride from Oakland with some unsuspecting motorist. None of the three was wearing what could be described as "prison" clothes.

Tasker, who is described as being of stocky build with curly black hair, was wearing black work trousers and a gray shirt. Ervin and Davis, both of whom have dark brown hair, were wearing dungarees and dark shirts.

Authorities were unable to say how the three got hold of the hacksaw blade which enabled them to saw through the bars of the basement window. A deputy said they may have found an old blade in the basement, but authorities are not dismissing the possibility they received outside help.

Third Escapee Still At Large

Pendleton County authorities said last night the third prisoner who escaped from the county jail at Franklin last week is still at large.

Harper Granville Hedrick, 49, of Riverton, apparently eluded his police at his home in Riverton where he was believed to have been holed up. He took a station wagon and escaped into Ohio, club and Mrs. Ralph Imlinger is sheriff's deputies said.

Police said Hedrick may own property in Ohio and is believed to have friends there.

Hopkins To Speak

Eugene J. Hopkins will give a talk on Indian relics at a dinner meeting of the Bedford Road Optimist Club tomorrow at the Bedford Road fire hall.

Funeral Tuesday
The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home, Cumberland, where friends will be received from 2 until 4 p. m. and 7 until 9 p. m. today. A funeral service will be conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday at Emmanuel Episcopal Church with Rev. H. M. Richardson, the rector, officiating. Interment will follow in Rest Lawn Burial Park, Cash Valley Road.

Fire Prevention County Plans Being Pushed

Volunteers Meet At LaVale Hall

Plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week beginning October 9 were formulated at the meeting of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association yesterday at the LaVale Fire Hall.

Posters were distributed to members of the 27 companies represented, along with other literature stressing the importance of fire prevention. Only four companies lacked representation.

A fire prevention speakers' bureau also has been developed by the volunteer firemen of the two counties. Cromwell C. Zembower is serving as chairman of this bureau. Organizations interested in having a fire prevention program are urged to contact Mr. Zembower.

Equipment Added

Hommer Ambrose, secretary-treasurer of the association's insurance committee, reported that six additional pieces of fire fighting equipment have been purchased by the companies involved in this cooperative program. There are now 78 pieces of equipment in the 28 fire companies covered by the insurance.

Another meeting of interest to firemen will be held at the LaVale Fire Hall at 7:30 o'clock tonight. This is the annual meeting of the fire service radio network of Civil Defense.

A new coordinator and secretary-treasurer will be elected and the contract for service of the equipment will be renewed for another year. David E. Kirk is now serving as coordinator and Mr. Zembower as secretary-treasurer.
